PROGRESS REPORTS & PARENT-TEACHER CONFERENCES

Progress reports were mailed out yesterday. In order to meet with your child(ren)'s teachers on Tuesday, November 23, please be sure to make an appointment, by following our online instructions (sent to you via e-mail and hard copy) or by calling the boys' office at 305-948-3338.

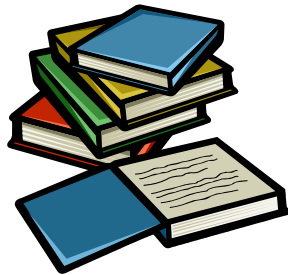

For Title I parents: There will be an Orientation Meeting for all parents of children in Title I on Tuesday evening at 7PM in the library. If you would like to meet with Mrs. Glatt privately, she will be available for conferences on Tuesday evening, 6-7PM & 7:30-9PM. You may schedule an appointment by calling 305.948.3338.

For ACE parents: Mrs. Berman is available for conferences on Tuesday evening 6-9PM. You may schedule an appointment by calling 305.948.3338.

Please bear in mind that the deadline for scheduling appointments for Sunday has passed. Appointments for Tuesday must be made by 11:00 AM on that day, Tuesday, November 23.

READY, SET ....READ!

The Book Fair is up and running and the students (and parents) are taking advantage of the tremendous selection of books available for purchase. If you would like to visit the Book Fair, it will be open during conferences on Sunday morning. In addition, grades 2B, 4B, 5B, and 2G-R will be visiting the Book Fair on Monday.

KONEI OLAM

This week we followed Yoni on a trip on one of England's famous double—decker buses. We learned from Yoni how important it is to tell the truth even in an embarrassing situation. Stay tuned for next week when we go visit Manchester!!

WEEKLY PARSHA CLASS

Rabbi Baumann's weekly Parsha class is at a different time this coming Thursday morning because of the shortened school day. The class will take place in the office from 9:30-10:15 AM.

PARENTING CLASS

The next class will take place in one week, on November 28.

5G CELEBRATES!

Last week, half of the girls from Kitah Heh celebrated their participation in the Sukkos Hasmoda program. Mrs. Lind brought in Hebrew music and taught some Israeli dances and they had a great time! Thank you Mrs. Lind!!! We hope that the entire class will participate in the Pesach Hasmoda program.

This week, Kitah Heh celebrated their overwhelming participation in the Tzedaka campaign to benefit Ateres Zvi. They enjoyed an ice cream party complete with cones and chocolate syrup! We hope the Mitzvah of giving Tzedaka will forever be sweet for the girls!

Dear Parents,

We spoke last week about being sensitive to the strong feelings that lay at the root of sibling rivalry. There is another strong force that normally operates between siblings, despite their rivalry, and that is loyalty. In describing the two brothers who most forcefully and forthrightly came to the defense of their sister Dinah, after she was violated by Shechem, the Torah identifies them as Achei Dinah – Dinah's brothers (34:26). Rashi, as explained by the Sifsei Chachomim points out it was their devotion to their sister, not an inherently violent nature they may have possessed, that gave them the strength and courage to risk their lives and come to save her.

In every family, the pressures of living together and sharing the love and attention of parents gives rise to feelings of jealousy and rivalry. At the same time, most siblings can rise above the rivalry to attain a strong feeling of loyalty and devotion to each other. So often, brothers and sisters who fight like 'cats and dogs' at home, will willingly and bravely come to the defense of a younger sibling, when it's outside of home. How can we understand these feelings co-existing within the same person?

In truth, it's natural for members of the same family to feel united and loyal to each other. After all, the family is the ultimate 'team.' The main question is how can people who are so devoted to each other on the deepest of emotional levels, get involved with constant squabbles, friction and worse? Where do those feelings go when fighting is taking place? The answer is that we humans get distracted very easily. When something annoys us at the moment, we focus on that and forget everything else going on. We love our brothers and sisters, but that is completely forgotten at the moment that they've taken something of ours, received more (in our perception) attention from a parent, or have gotten in the way of what I wanted to do or have.

Although much attention is lavished upon dealing with these difficult rivalries, the true test of family cohesion and unity is what takes place outside of home. Do your children defend each other? Would they tolerate someone else insulting, belittling or harming their brother or sister? Are they helpful to each other outside the home? At school we get much Nachas from seeing the concern siblings have for each other if their lunches get accidentally mixed up, or if one ended up with the other's books or materials. There's no doubt the scene at home is frequently very different, but when it counts, they're there for each other.

What happens if this unity is lacking outside of home? This may or may not be a serious problem. Either way, it requires attention. It may only necessitate your talking to your children about how we are devoted to each other and look out for each other away from home. For most children this comes naturally, but as with any developing midah or habit – if it doesn't happen by itself we need to make it happen. Be aware of it, point it out, and direct your children in the proper way of relating to each other. If there seems to be a deeper issue, it must be addressed. If you can't get them to feel the love through your intervention, get help.

The unity of Klal Yisrael begins with the family. By strengthening the bonds between our children, we are promoting Ahavas Yisrael, which will bring us untold Nachas, and bring the Third Bais Hamikdosh, may it be built speedily, in our day.

Best wishes for a unifying Shabbos,

Rabbi Kalman Baumann
